Annual fee increase schedule

Fees as of 2011 are based on 24,000 electric endpoints. In the event that Customer, during any year increases the amount of electric endpoints, there shall be an additional charge to the Customer and Customer shall pay Contractor such additional charge, equal to the Monthly Service Fee (as hereinafter defined) applicable for the year in the increase is made divided by the total number of endpoints which are added during such period. The Monthly Service Fee for a year is the amount provided for such year as set forth above in this Appendix A divided by twelve (12). Monthly Service Fee calculations shall continue until termination of the contract.

Termination for Convenience Fees

Termination for Convenience Fees for Customer shall be calculated as the sum of the remainder of outstanding fees for the current year in which termination for convenience is triggered plus the next entire year's fees, where both year's total fees are calculated pursuant to the annual fee schedule referenced in this contract. Termination for convenience fees under this contract shall be equal to zero dollars after December 31, 2026.
